

Fertcare Level A

Basic Product Knowledge and Storage training for Staff who directly handle Fertiliser

Overview

Fertcare Level A course as offered by Back Paddock Company has a strong focus on basic product knowledge, environmental and food safety risk management as well as storage. The course also raises awareness of the main Occupational Health and Safety (OH&S) issues related to fertiliser use and storage.

As a business owner it makes sense to have staff who can confidently work safely with product thereby reducing workplace accidents. Having staff with these skills gives peace of mind and ensures that your fertiliser storage solutions are being carried out with the most up-to-date judgment, knowledge and skills.

Who would benefit

Anyone who is involved in the direct handling and storage of fertilisers.

Learning outcomes (what do you get out of it)

At the end of this Fertcare A course staff will have a basic understanding of fertiliser and soil ameliorant products including:-

-  physical identification of product, likely in-field uses, and the need for quality product at all stages in the supply chain
-  understanding product labels and the information provided by labels
-  understanding MSDS, what information they contain and when they should be provided to the farmer
-  storage and handling characteristics, how these can be affected by the way products are managed, the effect on product quality and the consequences for the end user
-  understand the main environmental and food safety risks associated with storing and handling fertilisers

Level A is delivered as a one-day workshop and is followed by a workplace assessment carried out by the participant's supervisor.
